To Whom it May Concern:

We met Chris Drexel in 2006 when he was working for another contractor as the lead framer. The project was our bed and breakfast/home which was custom designed by us and quite large – almost 11,000 sq feet. From the moment that Chris arrived on our job site it was quite apparent that he was the right person to have the role of lead framer and to be in charge when his boss was not on the site.

I was on the site every day during the project so I have first hand knowledge of not only his own personal excellent workmanship but his exceptional leadership as well. Chris takes great pride in what he does, is a true professional and expects the same for whoever is working with/for him. Even though he had a long drive to our job site every day, he was always punctual and arrived with a spirit to get right to work. He always gave 100% no matter what he was doing.

Chris also assisted us in installing windows and exterior doors and saw to it that they were installed properly.

It was no surprise to us that Chris made the decision to start his own business and, although it was no doubt a large loss for his previous employer and Chris enjoyed working for him, it was time for Chris to be out on his own.

We would recommend Chris not only for his workmanship but his excellent work ethics as well.
